

Dec. 13, 1944

To my dearest darling:

I have a few spare minutes again today so I'll drop you another line. Honey I'm still safe & sound & in good health. The only thing wrong is that I'm terribly lonesome for my little honey. Oh mama, I'm so deeply in love with you. If this war would only hurry up & get over so I can get back to you. Then dear I'll be happy again. Honey, I love you so very much & so very lonesome for you.

Imagine dear that you have read the papers & know where we're at. Dear I'm very thankful to be in this outfit. When you get damn good meals up at the front honey, it's the best outfit there is. So honey, I'm plenty satisfied with (it)so you don't have to worry about that. You just can't beat it. I got good men who know who I am & will accept my decisions so honey I'm set. I'll be sending you a box soon with some Jerry medals & stuff, so be on the lookout. Also some German money for your collection.

Well honey, I have to run now, so dearest goodbye for now & remember honey keep your chin up all the time & I'll be safe & sound. I love you with all my heart dearest & I think of you every minute that I can. Don't worry too much about me honey. I'll be o.k. Nothing can hurt me when I have the sweetest wife in the world waiting for me at home. Tell Pop hello & pet Mitzi for me honey. Bye darling & I love you.

Your loving husband forever

P.S. Loads of kisses honey